Post-War Program

Air Force Aid Society
BY CAPT. EDDIE RICKENBACKER
President, Air Force Aid Society

THE United States Air Force has always been concerned with the welfare of its personnel, and particularly the plight of those families momentarily distressed by a lack of funds sufficient for their needs.

Capt. Rickenbacker

The Air Force Aid Society was created to contribute towards improved morale by alleviating financial distress among all categories of Air Force personnel and their dependents. These emergencies frequently occurred due to financial difficulties incidental to food, clothing, housing, illness and death.

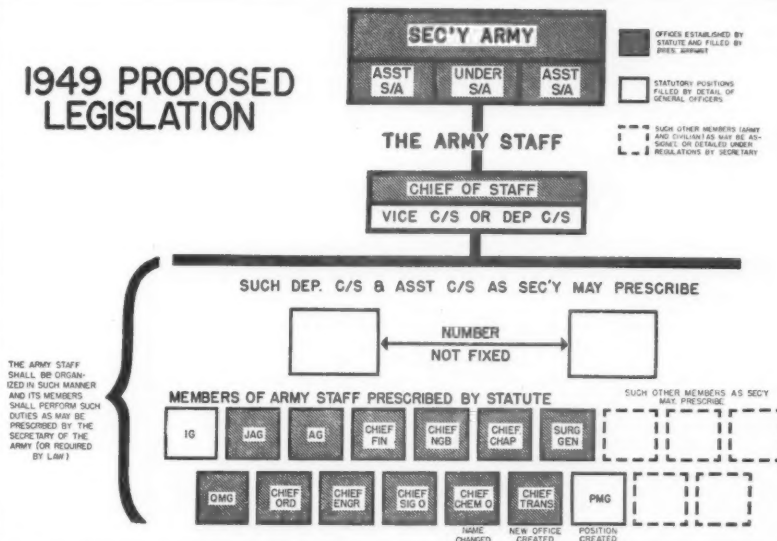

The Air Force Aid Society was incorporated as a civilian organization in 1942 under the laws of the District of Columbia and by authority of the War Department. It was authorized to begin operations as the emergency relief organization of the Air Force on March 1, 1946.

The Aid Society is directed by a Board of fifteen trustees, including the Honorable W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force, Honorary President; Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, President; General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force, Vice President; Major General Howard C. Davidson, USAF, Ret'd., Vice President and Director; Brigadier General Aaron E. Jones, USAF, Ret'd., Secretary; Mr. Robert V. Fleming, President of Riggs National Bank, is the Treasurer and Chairman of the Finance Committee. The Director and Secretary act for the board in coordinating policies and business operations.

General administration, incidental to the military control and disbursement of funds throughout the Air Force, is coordinated by military personnel under the Vice Chief of Staff, Headquarters United States Air Force. This military participation and control are considered essential to the factors involving personnel problems and morale which are direct responsibilities of Command.

Each major Air Force Command within the United States or abroad, prescribes the operating procedure for their respective units in conformity with policies established at U. S. Air Force Headquarters. Practically all Air Bases accordingly operate Air Force Aid Society Chapters or Sections in the interests of their personnel. Air Base Commanders are authorized to extend loans or gifts granted through Aid Society facilities to include $250.00 for each case. Applications for greater amounts are forwarded to Headquarters for review.

Non-interest-bearing loans are subject to repayment by monthly allotment of (Please turn to Page 1381)

1949 PROPOSED LEGISLATION

Official chart showing the organization of the Department of the Army as proposed in the reorganization bill submitted to Congress this week by Secretary Gray.

Army Reorganization
Plan Sent to Congress

Broad and continuing authority for the reorganization of the Army is contained in a bill introduced in the Senate this week by Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

The bill, introduced at the request of Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, would permit the President, the Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary of the Army to add new branches of the Army, and to abolish or consolidate present branches, without specific Congressional action.

The organization proposed by the new bill is much the same as that now in effect by virtue of Executive Orders issued under the wartime powers of the President. However, present statutes prescribing in detail the duties and functions of most of the Army agencies would be repealed by the new measure, in order to provide the maximum flexibility and give complete authority for administrative action to effect such changes as may appear desirable. Only the Medical Service, the Judge Advocate General's Corps and the Chaplains would be exempted from possible future changes by executive action.

The bill specifically abolishes the Cavalry and replaces it as an Army branch with Armor. The Field Artillery and the Coast Artillery Corps are combined in the Artillery. The Transportation Corps and the Military Police Corps, now organized under executive authority, would be accorded statutory recognition as branches of the Army.

The measure divides the present arms and services into two groups—basic branches and special branches. For uniformity all of the basic branches, other than the Infantry, Artillery and Armor, are designated as corps, whereas at present (Please turn to Page 1375)

Heads Navy General Board

Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, head of the National War College since 1946, was named this week to the chairmanship of the Navy General Board.

Admiral Hill had served as Commandant of the top level service institution since its establishment. He was relieved by Lt. Gen. Harold R. Bull. Command of the school is to be rotated every three years among the three services.

Autonomy of Air Force
Completed on 26 July

The autonomy envisioned for the U. S. Air Force under the National Security Act of 1947 was achieved this week.

To permit a period of transition, the unification law provided that for two years after its approval "personnel (both military and civilian) property, records, installations, agencies, activities, and projects may be transferred between the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force." That period expired on 26 July of this week, so that the Air Force now stands completely independent and parallel with the Army and Navy as an agency in the National Military Establishment.

The occasion was marked by the signing by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson of Transfer Order No. 40, the nomination of two Air Force Medical Department officers to be major generals and five other Medical Department officers to be brigadier generals, and the appointment of Col. Charles I. Carpenter, Chief, Air Force Chaplains, as a major general.

The final separation order was signed by Secretary Johnson on 22 July.

Two major separation orders which had been held for the last resulted in the creation of an Air Force Medical Department, under command of Maj. Gen. Malcolm C. Grow, the No. 1 medical officer trans- (Please turn to Page 1381)

Senate May Vote Pay
Increases Next Week

President Truman on 28 July signed a bill raising the salaries of municipal court judges. The chief judge of the municipal court of appeals will get $14,500 and associate judges $14,000, increases of $1,000 each. The chief judge of the municipal court will get $13,500 and associate judges $13,000. Associate judges now get $9,975 and others $10,000.

The Kilday Pay Bill is expected to come up for final passage by the Senate next week.

No effort was made to bring up the measure this week as it was understood that no action would be taken relative to Service compensation until consideration of the pending Unification Bill was concluded. In view of the fact that the Senate already has accepted the conference report on this measure it is likely to be disposed of early next week.

Supporters of revision of pay schedules of the Uniformed Services do not expect a prolonged debate on the Kilday Bill. They think it will pass the Senate by a substantial majority.

Some Senators are expected to oppose the measure because they are against any increase in Federal expenditures at this time. Others, including Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.), object to consideration of this bill until action is taken on pending legislation to increase salaries of top civilian officials. Senator Flanders has announced that he will offer the Civilian Pay Bill as an amendment to the Kilday Bill.

In reporting the bill to the Senate the Armed Services Committee, in addition to those sections of the report as printed in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, made a section by section analysis of the measure, pointing out the changes from present laws and from the House version of the bill. Some of the more important features of this analysis follow:

Section 201. Basic Pay

(a) Pay grades and monthly basic pay for each pay grade.—This subsection prescribes pay grades for all personnel of all the services included in the bill and establishes the monthly pay within each pay grade according to years of service. Basic pay includes, in a single sum, the amount the service person is entitled to according to grade or rating and length of service.

The in-grade increases or "longevity" are approximately $15 and $7.50 per month, depending on pay grade, and are granted every 2 years up to 18 years service and every 4 years from 18 to 30 years.

The present pay-period system with base pay plus longevity pay of 5 percent of base pay for every 3 years service, up to 30 years service, which permitted an individual to move into a higher pay period because of years of service, would be eliminated by this subsection.

In his final letter to the committee, Mr. Hook stated that he felt the action taken in the House version of H. R. 5007 to reduce flag and general officers 10 percent below the Hook scales, while reducing other officers only 5 percent, was an erroneous procedure.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch—"Premature withdrawal of United States troops from South Korea has made it more difficult for the course of true representative government to prevail in South Korea. But it makes it more necessary than ever for American diplomatic moves there to be successful."

Des Moines Register—"The argument can be made soundly, we believe that one chief of staff, directly responsible to the Secretary of Defense, who is in turn responsible to the President, gives more assurance of firm civilian control than divided military authority."

Dallas News—"Current debate on the Atlantic Pact should not obscure the need for a similarly strong defense measure on our Pacific front. There Moscow penetration backing Red aggression is making greater inroads than in Europe."

Christian Science Monitor—"The suspension of two Army major generals—the chiefs of the chemical corps and the quartermaster branch—should not be taken as evidence of these officers' guilt. But it can be taken as welcome evidence that at least one department named in the expose of the Washington 'five per centers' is willing to undertake its own housecleaning."

New York Herald Tribune—"The suspension of Major Generals Waitt and Feldman does not constitute a verdict against them, as individuals. It does demonstrate, however, that further investigation of the two men is warranted, and that in some cases the public, rather than the contract seekers, may have been the primary victims of the five-percenters."

May Vote on Pay Next Week

He felt that the changes should be the same. The committee agreed with Mr. Hook's reasoning, and amended the scales so that the 5 percent differential was restored to flag and general officers.

Consideration was given to a proposal that the pay scales be amended so as to provide further within-grade longevity increases in the four lower commissioned grades, but favorable action was not taken because such an increase would be a departure from the principle that longevity increases must be geared to promotion and the assumption of greater responsibility on the part of the individual.

Consideration was also given to a proposal that the pay of the lowest grade warrant officer be increased so that enlisted persons promoted to warrant grade would be insured a pay increase in every case. The proposal was rejected because of the fact that an enlisted person who is appointed to warrant or commissioned grades enters a new career field which ultimately leads to much higher pay rates.

(b) Assignment of commissioned officers to pay grades.—This subsection assigns commissioned officers to the pay grades established in subsection (a) of this section according to the commissioned grade, temporary or permanent, in which they are serving.

(c) Assignment of warrant officers to pay grades.—This subsection authorizes the Secretary concerned to distribute warrant officers in the appropriate pay grades established for them by subsection (a) of this section.

The committee amendment which adds "including warrant officers heretofore retired" after the words "warrant officers" is self-explanatory.

A proposal that the section be amended so as to distribute warrant officers to the various grades on the basis of years of service was rejected as placing undue emphasis on longevity and too little on efficiency. Also, the warrant officer career plan now being perfected by the Department of the Army would seem to be a better means of effecting this distribution.

(d) Assignment of enlisted persons to pay grades.—This subsection authorizes the Secretary concerned to distribute enlisted persons in the appropriate pay grades established for them by subsection (a) of this section.

(e) When members of the uniformed services are entitled to basic pay.—Under this subsection, all members of the uniformed services, including members of the National Guard and the Air National Guard, when entitled to the same pay as members of the Regular components, would, when on active duty, or when participating in full-time training, training duty with pay or other full-time duty, receive the basic pay of the pay grade to which assigned or in which distributed according to cumulative years service.

Any duty performed by members of the National Guard of the United States or the Air National Guard of the United States in their status as members of the National Guard or the Air National Guard is considered active duty in the service of the United States.

Section 202. Service creditable in computation of basic pay

(a) Active and inactive service in Regular and nonregular components.—This subsection provides that, in computing cumulative years of service for basic pay purposes, all service creditable under present law for pay purposes shall be credited, and adds two new categories as follows:

(1) Inactive service as a Reserve nurse (par. 4), and

(2) The first year's service as deck officer or junior engineer in the Coast and Geodetic Survey (par. 5).

Under present law, active service only is credited for Reserve nurses and service in excess of 1 year is credited for deck officers and junior engineers.

Service as cadets or midshipmen is not creditable under the terms of this subsection, and proposals to amend the bill so as to count such service were rejected by the committee after due consideration of the factors involved.

(b) Time spent on a retired list.—Under this subsection members would accrue additional service credit for pay purposes, while on any retired list while receiving retirement pay from the Veterans' Administration, or while receiving retainer pay in the Fleet Reserve or Fleet Marine Corps Reserve, but this additional service credit could be used only for active-duty pay. Only actual active service could be used to increase retired pay.

Section 204. Incentive pay—"Hazardous duty"

(a) Types of "hazardous" duty.—This subsection establishes nine types of duty considered as susceptible of classification as "hazardous" and authorizes payment of incentive pay for the performance of these types of duty under competent orders. Duty with lepers (6), and demolition duty (7), are new types, except in the case of the Public Health Service, which now recognizes duty with lepers as hazardous.

(b) Incentive pay for flight and submarine duty.—This subsection contains the monthly rates of incentive pay for flying as a crew member and for submarine duty. Present law provides an increase of 50 percent in base and longevity pay for this duty, whereas the table in this subsection provides a flat monthly rate according to pay grade. The effect of the subsection is to reduce this type of pay materially.

In his final letter to the committee, Mr. Hook stated that he did not feel that the pay of flag and general officers should have been reduced 10 percent; that if any reduction was made, it should have been the same as for other officers, namely, 5 percent. If this adjustment were made, he felt that flight pay for flag and general officers should be reduced from the $210 shown in the table. On this basis the committee reduced the flight pay for flag and general officers from $210 to $150.

(c) Incentive pay for "hazardous duty" other than flight and submarine duty.—This subsection authorizes incentive pay of $100 per month for officers and warrant officers and $50 for enlisted persons for the performance of the types of hazardous duty described in subsection (a) of this section, other than for flying as a crew member and submarine duty. Incentive pay for glider and parachute duty is substantially the same as present law. Under present law, naval officers (only) on duty at submarine-escape-training tanks, deep-sea-diving school and the experimental diving unit get a 25-percent increase in their pay. This subsection places incentive pay for this duty on a flat-rate basis and extends the coverage to enlisted persons and to all services.

(d) President authorized to suspend incentive pay.—Originally, this subsection authorized the President, in time of war, to suspend payment of incentive pay for hazardous duty, or to prescribe that members, who perform service in certain areas or under certain conditions which involves more than ordinary military risk or danger, shall be entitled to receive incentive pay at rates not to exceed those prescribed for other hazardous duty in this section.

The committee has amended this subsection by deleting the portion which would have authorized the President to expand the categories of persons to whom incentive pay could be given. This authority was regarded as one which should rest with the Congress.

Section 206. Special pay—Sea and foreign duty

This section provides additional pay on a flat-rate basis according to pay grade for enlisted persons on sea or foreign duty. Present law provides an increase of 10 percent in base pay for commissioned officers and warrant officers and an increase of 20 percent in base pay for enlisted persons for this duty. This section eliminates this pay for commissioned officers and warrant officers, but continues it for enlisted persons on a monthly rate which is graduated according to rank.

Section 207. Special pay—Reenlistment bonus

(a) Amount of bonus.—This subsection provides for a reenlistment bonus, payable in advance upon reenlistment, increasing in proportion to the length of the reenlistment period from $40 for a 2-year reenlistment to $360 for a 6-year reenlistment or for a reenlistment for an indefinite period, and in the latter case $60 for each year thereafter subject to the limitation that the total amount paid shall not exceed $1,440. Eligibility for the bonus requires reenlistment within 3 months from discharge. The bonus would not be paid for more than four reenlistments and would not be paid for any period of a reenlistment which would extend the enlistees' service beyond 30 years.

Present law authorizes a reenlistment bonus of $50 for each year of active service in the last enlistment and is payable upon reenlistment. Present law contains no limit on reenlistments but does not require reenlistment within 3 months from date of discharge.

The committee made a clarifying amendment with respect to the words "unspecified period of time."

Section 303. Travel and Transportation

(a) When payable.—Under existing law, officers traveling under competent orders are entitled to one of the following allowances:

(1) A mileage allowance of 8 cents per mile traveled.

(2) Railroad transportation, including first-class ticket, plus 5 cents per mile traveled.

(3) A first-class railroad ticket with pullman accommodations plus $7 per diem while in a travel status, or reimbursement for actual expenses not to exceed $8 per diem.

(4) Air travel plus $7 per diem; or, in lieu of per diem, reimbursement for actual expenses not to exceed $8 per day.

Under existing law all enlisted persons traveling under orders are entitled to be furnished actual transportation plus pullman accommodations. In addition, they are entitled to cash payment for subsistence not to exceed $5 per day.

Enlisted men when traveling by air are entitled to the same travel allowance as prescribed for officers, i. e., reimbursement of actual expenses not to exceed $8 per day or a diem allowance of $7 per day.

Under this subsection, members of the uniformed services will be entitled to travel and transportation allowances for travel performed or to be performed, and they may receive—

(1) actual transportation; or reimbursement therefor; or a monetary allowance in lieu of the cost of transportation at a rate not in excess of 7 cents per mile; or

(2) actual transportation; or reimbursement therefor; or a monetary allowance not to exceed 7 cents per mile; plus, in any case, a per diem of not to exceed $9 per day; or

(3) a mileage allowance not to exceed 10 cents per mile.

Per diem has been increased from $7 to $9; monetary allowance based upon mileage has been increased from 5 cents to 7 cents per mile; and mileage allowance has been increased from 8 cents to 10 cents per mile.

(b) Members on duty outside United States.—This subsection reenacts existing law, permitting the Secretaries to prescribe allowances for such personnel whether or not on a travel status.

(c) Transportation of dependents and household effects.—This subsection provides for the transportation of dependents, and modifies existing law authorizing transportation for personnel and their dependents and shipment of their household effects upon original appointment or enlistment in the service and upon final separation from the service.

Heretofore, only members of the reserve components were entitled to transportation for themselves and dependents and shipment of baggage when first called into active service and upon release from active duty.

This subsection also includes provisions for the transportation of dependents even though there is involved no change of station in order that dependents may travel at Government expense between points in the United States where the service member is on sea duty or on duty outside the United States at a post of duty where dependents are not permitted to accompany him. It likewise covers authority to pay for transportation for dependents in cases where dependents, because of military necessity, must be evacuated from certain areas.

The 27,000-ton vessel will carry the group on a two-week cruise in Atlantic waters, with a visit to New York City this week-end. The Leyte is commanded by Capt. William Erdmann, USN.

Thank Petroleum Board

Members of the Military Petroleum Advisory Board were presented with letters of appreciation this week from Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson for their assistance in studies to meet the needs of the Armed Services for petroleum in an emergency.

The letters were presented for Secretary Johnson by Under Secretary of the Air Force Arthur S. Barrows, Acting Chairman of the Munitions Board, at a luncheon given for the Board by the Munitions Board Petroleum Committee. Secretary Johnson stated:

"Intelligent planning to meet the needs of the Military services for petroleum in a national emergency requires the closest cooperation by military and civil interests, and the utmost care in balancing resources against requirements."

"During the past two years, you and other leading experts in the petroleum industry, who have been so generous with your time, have given the National Military Establishment the benefit of your experience and counsel on a wide range of matters relating to petroleum, all of which are of the utmost importance in planning for the maintenance of the national security."

"The Establishment has been singularly fortunate in having your assistance and I want to express my personal appreciation, and that of the military departments and agencies for the invaluable services you are rendering."

"Your continued contributions to this work are highly important, both to the military establishment and to the nation."

The Advisory Board is composed of: Chairman, B. K. Brown, Vice President, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana; Members: P. G. Benedum, President, Hiawatha Oil and Gas Co.; R. Brazell, President, Leonard Refineries, Inc.; T. E. Buchanan, General Manager, marine department, The Texas Co.; S. P. Coleman, Director, Standard Oil Co. of N. J.; E. L. Service Housing Bill

The House and Senate this week agreed unanimously to a conference committee report on a bill to encourage construction of low-cost rental housing in areas on or adjacent to military installations. The bill would authorize mortgage insurance on family quarters erected by private builders on land leased from the Government on military posts, or in nearby communities. Such quarters are needed in 219 areas in 41 states. Passage of the measure is expected to result in the construction of several thousand dwellings to be rented to Service personnel. The bill now goes to the White House for Presidential approval.

B-50 Squadron In Calif.

Castle AFB, Calif., became the first station in the USAF to have a fully-equipped B-50-D squadron, Col. Robert H. Terrill reported last week, as it was revealed officially that the new bomber is at Castle to replace the wartime Superforts.

The 330th Squadron, one of three in the 93d Bomb Group, now has its full quota of the new airplanes, which were picked up from the factory by pilots of the unit. The other squadrons will be getting theirs soon, the colonel said.

Fiscal '50 Military Budget

Reporting the military appropriations bill for fiscal year 1950, the Senate Committee on Appropriations has recommended expenditures during the current year of $12,731,834,478, a decrease of $540,981,322 passed by the House, but $2,277,357,065 in excess of 1949 appropriations.

The House bill provided $2,636,301,000 for contract authorizations, but the Senate committee reduced this amount by $577,755,000 and approved only $2,058,546,000 for this purpose.

For the three Services, the Senate committee recommended $4,570,907,089, Army; $4,388,079,000, Navy; and $4,000,887,000, Air Force. Compared with 1949, the Army would receive $1,143,700,074 less; the Navy, $726,059,400 more; while the Air Force, operating on its own budget for the first time, would be given $4,104,076,000 more than in 1949.

Probably the most significant action taken by the Senate group was the reduction of the Air Force from a strength of 58 groups as passed by the House to 48 groups as recommended in the President's budget. The 48-group figure was supported by both Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington during the Senate hearings. Specifically, the Senate committee reduced the contract authorization from $1,992,755,000 to $1,415,000,000, a cut of $577,755,000.

Following are excerpts from the report of the Senate Appropriations Committee concerning the National Military Establishment budget for Fiscal Year 1950:

Goal of National Security

In considering appropriations for the National Military Establishment, the committee's paramount consideration was to provide for the national security. It is the firm conviction of the committee that a niggardly approach to the problem of national defense would encourage a belligerent attitude on the part of a possible aggressor; that every dollar appropriated for the Military Establishment should be considered in the form of insurance against assaults on this Nation; that every expenditure made from this appropriation should be to purchase national security. In recommending the appropriations in the accompanying bill this goal was always predominant, and in cases of doubt the committee made its decisions in favor of increasing our military strength.

However, in considering these appropriations the committee fully realized that second only to national security was the consideration of our internal economic stability. This stability bears a direct relationship to the goal of external national security. A nation which exhausts itself in enervating over-preparation for defense against aggression may well fall prey to a cunning and patient enemy who fully realizes the debilitating influences of a war-gear economy over a long period of time. Moreover, the general economic conditions of the country, the status of the Federal debt and of the Federal budget entered into the committee's deliberations. The committee's action was taken, therefore, with the intent to provide a maximum of military might within the limits of our economic potential.

President's Recommendation

The committee was thus faced with the necessity of deciding what should be the outside limits of appropriations for the Military Establishment at this time. In making its decision it was guided principally by the recommendations of the President of the United States in his budget message and the testimony as presented to the committee by the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, who were unanimous in their support of the President's budget.

Two major items were considered in this connection. The bill as presented to the Senate committee contained $222,067,000 in cash and $577,755,000 in contract authorization for an expanded Air Force, which were not included in the budget estimates. Direct statements before the committee by both the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Air Force indicated unmistakably that they stood firmly for the action as contained in the President's recommendations. The committee subsequently acted to reduce the Air Force appropriation to the budget estimates. An additional request for appropriations for acquisition and construction of real property was granted but is to be absorbed in the overall appropriation and authorization for the Air Force in areas indicated by House reductions of the Air Force.

Secondly, the committee was impressed by the testimony of the Secretary of Defense regarding economies which under given considerations could be effected in the Military Establishment. As a result of this and the committee's investigations, the committee directed an over-all reduction in appropriations of $433,968,611. The Secretary of Defense is authorized and directed to apply such reductions wherever in his discretion such action would not jeopardize the national security. In making the over-all reduction as instructed by the Senate committee, the Secretary of Defense is directed to apply the House reductions where no restorations were requested. The committee further recommends to the Secretary of Defense that he apply reductions to the maintenance and operation of the Air Force, the Air National Guard, the Air Reserve, proficiency administrative flying, the Army National Guard, the Army Organized Reserves, the Army Ordnance Department, the industrial mobilization program, and the research and development program of all services. The committee is of the opinion that substantial savings can be effected in the declining purchase prices of fuel and other petroleum products.

Areas of Possible Savings

The committee's scrutiny of the military budget figures, although necessarily limited by the time available, disclosed a number of areas in which substantial savings, without loss of military strength, should be possible. In this report the committee wishes to record the excellent degree of cooperation received from the Office of the Secretary of Defense. The committee is impressed with the Secretary's desire to effect economies and with the amount of pertinent data and investigatory technique that has been developed by his staff, and wishes to record its desire to assist the Secretary of National Defense in these necessary endeavors to economize within our national security organization.

Agree on Unification

Passage next week of legislation amending the National Security Act of 1947 to strengthen unification was anticipated following unanimous agreement among Senate and House conferees at a meeting this week.

The bill, as recommended by the conference committee, would provide that one of the three Assistant Secretaries of Defense would serve as Comptroller for the Department of Defense. With regard to a chairman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the recommendation was that there should be a presiding officer, but that he have no vote and exercise no military command over the JCS or over any of the Services, although he would have precedence over all other officers of the Armed Forces.

This limitation on the authority of the JCS chairman conforms with the expressed desire of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. He had urged and the conference committee agreed that the JCS and not the chairman should be the principal military advisers to the President, the National Security Council and the Secretary of Defense.

In general, the conference group agreed to viewpoints of Chairman Vinson and the House committee in limiting to some degree the powers not only of the JCS chairman but also those of the Secretary of Defense.

PX and Commissary Investigation

Almost four months of intensive consideration given to hearings into charges of competition of Army Post Exchanges, Navy Ships Stores and Army and Navy Commissaries with civilian retail stores has resulted in an agreement of the Philbin subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services to recommend to the full committee that legislation be formulated to end the competition, unless the Services agree to carry out voluntarily the suggestions of the subcommittee. The Services were expected to make a decision late this week.

The recommendations of the subcommittee call for the elimination of commissaries in metropolitan areas and in smaller areas where personnel cannot have the advantage of chain-store favorable prices. The Departments have been directed to reevaluate locations of commissaries, and report those that might be closed.

In relation to Post Exchanges and Ships Stores, the recommendation is that they do away with the handling of special orders for personnel of the Regular services as well as for retired personnel.

Commissary, Post Exchange, and Ships Stores privileges would be extended to the widows of personnel.

Retired personnel would be granted the privilege of purchasing at Post Exchanges and Ships Stores certain articles now sold only to personnel on active duty for at least 72 hours.

ent some are called departments. The Medical Department would become the Army Medical Service and its subordinate branches would be termed corps, such as the Medical Corps, the Dental Corps and the Nurses' Corps.

Under the bill the basic branches of the Army, for the present, would be the Infantry, Artillery, Armor, Adjutant General's Corps, Engineer Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Finance Corps, Signal Corps, Ordnance Corps, Chemical Corps, Transportation Corps, and Military Police Corps. This list would not necessarily be permanent since the President, Secretary of Defense, or Secretary of the Army could add new basic branches and abolish or consolidate the present branches, as well as prescribe or transfer duties and functions.

Designated as special branches are the Judge Advocate General's Corps, the Army Medical Service, and the Chaplains. The Army Medical Service would include the Medical Corps, the Dental Corps, the Army Nurse Corps, the Veterinary Corps, the Medical Service Corps, and the Women's Medical Specialist Corps. The special branches would not be subject to the same discretionary administrative changes as the basic branches. The organization and functions of the Judge Advocate General's Corps are specifically laid down by a recent statute, which is not replaced or amended by the new bill. The special branches would continue to have separate promotion lists, while the officers of the basic branches would all be on a single list.

The bill prescribes that there shall be a Secretary of the Army, an Under Secretary and two Assistant Secretaries. It gives the Secretary broad authority to assign to the Under Secretary or either Assistant Secretary such of his duties as he may consider proper, including supervision of industrial mobilization and procurement matters. The Secretary would be authorized to make assignments and details of members of the Army and to prescribe their duties. Members of the Army and civilian officials and employees may be assigned to offices of the Secretary, the Under Secretary and Assistant Secretaries in such numbers, grades and ratings as the Secretary may prescribe.

The bill sets up an Army Staff, part of which is designated the Army General Staff. The Army Staff covers the headquarters of the Army Department in Washington and includes the Chiefs of Branches, and their deputies and assistants, as well as such other members of the Army and civilian officers and employees as may be assigned under regulations of the Secretary. Provision is made for a Chief of Staff, a Vice Chief of Staff and such Deputies and Assistant Chiefs of Staff as the Secretary may prescribe. No change is made in the manner of appointment, term of office, or the rank and duties of the Chief of Staff. The functions prescribed for the Army Staff are practically the same as at present.

Chiefs of Branches

Provision is made for the following Chiefs of Branches: Chief of Engineers, Chief Signal Officer, Adjutant General, Quartermaster General, Chief of Finance, Chief of Ordnance, Chief Chemical Officer, Chief of Transportation, Surgeon General, Judge Advocate General, and Chief of Chaplains. The duties of these officers would be those prescribed by law or by the Secretary of the Army. It is specifically stated that the Judge Advocate General shall be selected and appointed as prescribed by Public Law 759 of the 80th Congress. In addition to these Chiefs of Branches provision is made for an Inspector General and a Provost Marshal General.

Each of these officers would be given such deputies and assistants as authorized by the Secretary of the Army. However, to conform with existing law, specific provision is made for an assistant Surgeon General with the rank of major general, who shall be a member of the Dental Corps, and an assistant Judge Advocate General with the rank of major general, and three other officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps with the rank of brigadier general.

The new bill prescribes that the United States Army shall consist of the Regular Army, the National Guard of the United States, and the Organized Reserve Corps, and all persons serving in the Army under call or conscription, including the members of the National Guard of the states, territories and District of Columbia, when in the service of the United States.

Army and Navy Journal 1375

July 30, 1949

The bill provides that the Army may be divided into such commands, forces, and organizations as directed by the President, the Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary of the Army. For military purposes the United States, its territories and possessions and other territory where the Army may be stationed may be divided into such areas as may be directed by executive authority.

Detail of Officers

Under regulations of the Secretary, commissioned officers of the Army may be detailed as General Staff officers, as Inspectors General, or to various other specific duties including, but not limited to intelligence, counter-intelligence and Military Government. Members of the Army appointed or assigned to one branch may be detailed for duty in any other branch, except that officers appointed in one corps of the Medical Service shall not be assigned to duty in any other corps of the Service, or in some other branch.

Specific provision is made that the new bill will not change the number of officers in the various grades, nor affect present laws relative to promotion and retirement, or the National Guard Bureau. It is also prescribed that nothing in the bill shall prevent the Secretary of Defense from acting pursuant to powers vested in him by law and issuing appropriate directions with respect to the Department of the Army.

In view of the fact that Congress is now in the closing weeks of its present session it is unlikely that this bill will be acted upon prior to adjournment, but it will probably be considered early in the next session. Because of the sweeping character of the authority requested it is probable that the Armed Services Committees will wish to give thorough consideration to all the details and implications of the proposed legislation.

A provision in the National Security Act of 1947 authorizes continuance of the present organization of the Army for two years from 26 July 1947. Since this two-year period expired on 26 July, 1949, the question has arisen as to whether the wartime organization of the Army was not automatically terminated at that time. However, legal opinion appears to hold that this feature of the Security Act was permissive rather than directive, and was included as a saving clause, on the assumption that the national emergency would have terminated prior to that time. Since the country is still technically at war the emergency powers of the President under which the present Army organization was established are still operative. Hence the two-year authorization in the Security Act is without effect.

The bill was transmitted to Congress by Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, through the Secretary of Defense, with the following letter of explanation to Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md.), Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee:

There is enclosed herewith draft of a bill "To provide for the organization of the Army and the Department of the Army, and for other purposes," which the Department of the Army recommends be enacted into law. The Secretary of Defense has assigned responsibility for the preparation and submission of this measure, on behalf of the National Military Establishment, to this Department.

The purpose of the proposed legislation is to provide a permanent statutory basis for the organization of the Army and the Department of the Army in broad and simple terms. Its enactment will not substantially change the organization of the Army and the Department of the Army as it now exists. It would, however, place the current organization on a permanent statutory basis independent of existing temporary authority under title I of the First War Powers Act, 1941 (55 Stat. 838) and subsection 305 (c) of the National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 508), thus permitting continuation of the present organization after the expiration of existing temporary authority. It would provide the flexibility in organization necessary to meet developments in the organization of the National Military Establishment, and would permit such changes in the duties of subordinate offices in the Department of the Army as may be found desirable.

1450 Warrant Officers

The Army will announce the appointment of 1450 Regular warrant officers (j. g.) to fill the position of the unit administrator warrant on 31 July.

These successful applicants were selected from a total of 5,299 officers and enlisted men of the Army of the United States or reserve components on active duty who applied for this RA position. The selection of these men completely fills the RA vacancies for this career field. The duties of this career warrant are to assist the unit commander in the supervision of unit administration such as the preparation of rosters, reports, correspondence, unit records, mess, supply, war bonds, insurance, courts-martial, and finance.

The special orders announcing the selection or appointment of officers and enlisted men will be distributed down to and including company level. The unit commander will extract the names of the persons listed on the special orders who are on duty with his unit, and will promptly notify TAG of those who wish to accept the letter of selection or the appointment or those who reject. The names of those given a letter of selection or appointment as warrant officers in this career field will be announced immediately following the publication of the special orders. Men holding letters of selection and presently serving as officers will not be required to return to their permanent warrant officer grade at this time.

A list of names arranged in order of their score will be retained by the Department of the Army until all position vacancies have been filled. Letters of rejection for those men who failed to attain the proper standard will be sent out by the Department of the Army in the very near future. Men who are above the minimum standard but not high enough on the list for selection will not be notified of their rejection until all vacancies have been filled.

Legion Public Relations Chief

National Commander Perry Brown of The American Legion has announced the appointment of Edward F. McGinnis as Director of Public Relations for that organization. Mr. McGinnis is a veteran of both World Wars, having served in the Air Forces as a sergeant in 1917-18 and as a commander in the Navy during World War II. In the latter conflict he was attached to the Office of Strategic Services, and spent a year in China and India under the command of Maj. Gen. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Army Mutual Aid

The Army Mutual Aid Association received 18 applications for membership during the past week and paid the insurance benefits on account of the death of Col. John C. Adams and Lt. James A. Brice.

Chaplain Corps Anniversary

The Army Chaplain Corps yesterday observed its 174th anniversary, marking the passage on 29 July 1775 by the Continental Congress of a resolution establishing the Corps. This resolution followed General George Washington's call for clergy to serve with the Armed Forces.

In a letter to Retiring Chief of Chaplains (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray said:

"I am happy to extend my greetings and compliments to you and to the Corps of Chaplains on this observance of 174 years of great service to our Army and our country by the Corps of Chaplains.

"The record and history of the Corps have been rich with exemplary deeds in the performance of its Chaplains. I know it shall never be otherwise with the leadership and personnel it is privileged to enjoy today."

General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, in a message of greeting to the Corps, stated:

"For 174 years, the Corps of Chaplains have been furnishing our fighting man with his greatest protection in battle—the armor of faith in his God and in his cause. Without this spiritual aid, American soldiers could never have overcome the hardships and the dangers that have always accompanied war.

"At the same time, away from the battlefield, the Chaplain has always been one of a commander's greatest assets. Today, the function of strengthening and developing the American belief in God and in country is more important than ever before. The young men in our Army today must look to their Chaplain as a true guide and leader on the road to success and accomplishment. For without the essential strengthening of our basic moral creeds we can never hope to achieve our goal.

"My warmest congratulations and best wishes to the Corps of Chaplains and its members who, selflessly and inspiringly, will continue their vital work."

Army JAGC Anniversary

The Army Judge Advocate General's Corps yesterday, 29 July, celebrated its 174th anniversary, which occasioned the dispatch by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, The Judge Advocate General, of the following message to all Army judge advocates:

"On 29 July, one hundred and seventy-four years ago, William Tudor was appointed 'Judge Advocate of the Army of the United Colonies.' This appointment was the origin of our Corps. Since that humble beginning we have steadily developed into the fine Corps we now are.

"During the past year the system and administration of justice in our Army have improved greatly. The system in letter and spirit is a worthy model for all armies and civil systems. It is up to us to translate its promise into realization. The merits of the system cannot be fully appreciated unless they are understood by every member of the service. We judge advocates must provide this understanding by a vigorous and continuing program of instruction. We must set our minds to achieve the standard established by the late Chief Justice Taft who said that a good system of justice must not only be good, but that the people affected by it must believe that it is a good system. In meeting this challenge I am certain the Corps can count on the same full measure of support from you that it has received in the past.

"Our accomplishments as members of the Army team during the past year on the civil side of the law, as well as in the military justice field, have been creditable and we can well be proud of our 174 years of service. Nevertheless, we must progress. Every judge advocate must continue to strive to perfect himself in every phase of his duties to the end that we may make the maximum contribution to the success of the Army's mission."

40 WAC Officers Nominated

The Army has announced nomination by the President of 40 officers in the Women's Army Corps, Regular Army. The appointment of these officers, subject to confirmation by the Senate, will bring to 333 the total number of women selected for commission in the Regular Army from applicants presently serving in the Army and former WAC officers not now on active duty.

sirable in the formulation of a more effective organization.

This proposal is in harmony with the important laws affecting the National Military Establishment enacted since the cessation of hostilities and does not make any changes in these laws. Among the most important of these laws are: National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 495); Officer Personnel Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 795); and the Armed Services Procurement Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 21).

The enclosed draft of bill is the result of an exhaustive study of laws, both permanent and temporary, affecting the organization of the Army Establishment. In the preparation of this proposal careful consideration was given to the lessons learned during the recent war, and an effort has been made to avoid the rigidity of organization required by existing permanent laws. That rigidity prevented the adoption of a more effective organization in the Army until the enactment of Title I of the First War Powers Act on December 18, 1941. This proposal has been designed to provide flexibility, in order that:

(a) The organization of the Army may be kept in harmony with changes and developments incident to mobilization and active military operations, in the event of a national emergency;

(b) The organization of the Army may be kept in harmony with changes and developments in the organization of the National Military Establishment and the several agencies thereof;

(c) The organization of the Army may be kept abreast of developments in the science of warfare and in the molding of an effective team of land, sea, and air forces;

(d) Duplication and overlapping of functions may be reduced to a minimum within the Army Establishment, in the interest of economy and effectiveness of organization.

In order to accomplish the purposes of this proposal, it is necessary that many laws be repealed. Some of these laws are obsolete or unnecessary, some having been superseded by later laws and are not now in effect, some are not now in force by virtue of action taken under authority of title I of the First War Powers Act, others are now in effect and would be replaced by new provisions contained in the enclosed draft of bill. Section 401 of the proposed bill lists the various laws to be repealed. There is enclosed a compilation showing the text of the laws listed for repeal. Among them are the first twenty sections of the National Defense Act of 1916, except for a few provisions in those sections not related to the purpose of this proposal.

This proposal would also amend various laws which authorize certain acts to be performed by particular offices or branches of the Army, so that hereafter those acts could be performed by whatever office or branch of the Army the Secretary of the Army might from time to time designate. Section 402 lists the various laws that would be amended by the bill. There is enclosed a compilation showing the text of the laws to be amended by this proposal.

This proposal does not abolish any of the principal offices now operative in the Department of the Army. However, the offices of the Chief of Infantry, Chief of Cavalry, Chief of Field Artillery, and Chief of Coast Artillery, whose operation has been suspended under the authority of war powers, would be abolished. It would establish by law the office of Chief of Transportation. That position is now operative under the authority of war powers, it was found to be necessary during the war, and it is desired that it be established by law as an office in the Department of the Army. The draft of the bill would prescribe that there be a Provost Marshal General who would be a general officer of the Army detailed to that position. That position was found to be necessary during the war, is now in existence, and it is proposed that it be continued permanently.

The desired flexibility in organization in the Department of the Army is in part accomplished by the repeal of laws specifying the duties of various offices in the Department, and by providing that the Secretary of the Army, under the direction of the President and the Secretary of Defense, be authorized to prescribe the duties of these offices. This will permit the transfer of a particular duty from one office in the Department of the Army to another, should any such transfer be found desirable. However, this proposed bill does not repeal or amend any of the laws prescribing the duties of the Judge Advocate General and the officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps. Those duties are of a judicial nature and are essential to the operation of the Army's court-martial system. Neither does this bill repeal nor amend any of the large number of laws pertaining to the civil functions of the Chief of Engineers and the Engineer Corps. This proposal pertains only to the military organization of the Department of the Army and the Army, and does not deal with the civil functions of the Department.

This proposed legislation does not change existing laws relating to the National Guard or the Organized Reserve Corps. A separate study is being made of the entire reserve component situation, but this proposal does not deal with that subject.

The enclosed draft of bill does not change the numbers of officers now authorized by the law in each of the several commissioned officer grades in the Army, or in any branch or component thereof. It makes no change in the laws applicable to promotion, pay, and retirement; and does not give to any person any right, privilege, or benefit not now authorized by law. It is an organization bill, and does not change existing provisions relating to the strength of the Army.

The enclosed draft of bill would classify the branches of the Army as "basic branches" and "special branches." The special branches are those in which regular officers are appointed and commissioned under existing law, and for which existing law prescribes separate promotion lists. These are the several corps of the Army Medical Service, the Chaplains, and the Judge Advocate General's Corps. There is no change in any of the special branches, except that the "Medical Department" would be known as the "Army Medical Service."

The basic branches are those to which officers assigned under existing law when appointed in the Regular Army without specification of branch. Under existing laws regular officers of the basic branches are carried on the single "Army promotion list," and this bill does not change these laws. The enclosed legislative proposal prescribes that there shall be such basic branches in the Army as the President may from time to time direct in the interest of developing and maintaining whatever arms and supporting activities he determines to be necessary to the efficiency of the Army, but lists the basic branches that shall be in the Army until such time as he directs otherwise. The branches so listed are the same as those now specified by law, except as follows. There would be an Armor branch, which would replace the Cavalry branch specified in existing law. There would be an Artillery branch, which would be a continuation of the Field Artillery and the Coast Artillery Corps. There would be a Transportation Corps and a Military Police Corps which are now in existence under war powers, and which would be continued. In order to obtain uniformity in nomenclature, all of the basic branches, except the Infantry, Armor, and Artillery, would be known as "Corps." Thus the "Adjutant General's Department," "Finance Department," and "Ordnance Department" would be known as the "Adjutant General's Corps," "Finance Corps," and "Ordnance Corps," respectively.

The proposed bill further provides that members of the Army may be detailed to duty in particular fields, including but not limited to intelligence, counter intelligence, and military government.

Attention is invited to subsection 305(c) of the National Security Act enacted July 26, 1947 (61 Stat. 508). This subsection prescribes: "Notwithstanding the provisions of the second paragraph of section 5 of title I of the First War Powers Act, 1941, the existing organization of the War Department under the provisions of Executive Order . . . may, to the extent determined by the Secretary of Defense, continue in force for two years following the date of enactment of this Act. . . ." (Boldface supplied). The two year period specified in that provision will expire July 26, 1949; but it is obvious that treaties of peace will not be signed before that date and that title I of the First War Powers Act will continue in force for some indefinite time thereafter. The word "notwithstanding," with which the provision quoted above from the National Security Act begins, shows that the provision is a guaranty that the organization of the Army existing at the date of enactment of that Act may continue for the two year period specified, even though title I of the First War Powers Act might be terminated during such period; and that it is not a limitation of the existence of such organization to such period. Nevertheless, the existing situation is not a desirable one, since the authority for the continuance of the present organization of the Department of the Army will depend upon continuance of Title I of the First War Powers Act. The organization of the Army should no longer rest upon war powers, but should be placed as soon as possible upon the firm basis of permanent legislation. For this reason, the Department of the Army recommends early consideration of the enclosed legislative proposal.

If enacted, this proposed legislation would result in no increased cost to the Government. On the other hand, it is believed that the flexibility which would be provided by this proposal would enable the Department of the Army, under the direction of the President and the Secretary of Defense, to evolve a more effective organization, in keeping with developments and changes in the organization of the National Military Establishment, which would eliminate overlapping and produce substantial economies. However, the Department of the Army is unable to estimate the potential saving that could be achieved as a result of such actions.

This proposal has been coordinated among the Departments and Boards in the National Military Establishment in accordance with procedures prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

The Bureau of the Budget has been consulted and advises that the enclosed draft of bill, together with a recommendation for prompt consideration, may be submitted to the Congress as a part of the President's legislative program.

To Command New Task Fleet

Vice Adm. Russell S. Berkey, nominated to that rank last week by President Truman, will command all Naval forces in the Western Pacific and Southeast Asia waters operating in support of U. S. foreign policy.

The command, formerly U. S. Naval Forces, Western Pacific, under Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badger, will be redesignated as the Seventh Task Fleet on 1 Aug.

Admiral Badger, who will be relieved by Admiral Berkey has not as yet been given a new assignment.

Rear Adm. Charles T. Joy has been named to succeed Admiral Berkey in the former's post as Commander of U. S. Naval Forces, Far East. Admiral Joy will serve in the assignment with the rank of Vice Adm.

Both Admiral Joy and Admiral Berkey were graduates of the 1916 class of the U. S. Naval Academy. Admiral Joy is now serving as Commander of the Naval Proving Ground at Dahlgren, Va.

Redesignation of the Western Pacific command will involve a reduction in the number of ships operating in those waters, but no information was available at the Navy Department as to the exact number.

Admiral's Daughter An Ensign

In an unprecedented ceremony held at the Naval Supply Center, Oakland, Calif., last week, Miss Mabel Levering Royer, daughter of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Murray L. Royer, was sworn in to the Regular Navy as a WAVE Ensign. Administering the oath of office was the proud father himself, Admiral Royer, SC, USN, Supply Officer in Command, Naval Supply Center, Oakland.

The newly commissioned Ensign is one of a group of 30 women throughout the country who qualified as officers in the Regular Navy. They have reported to the Navy General Line School at Newport, R. I., for a five-months' indoctrination course, including classes in Naval organization, aviation, history, military law, intelligence, communications, operations and logistics.

Film Iwo Jima Battle

The participation of Marine units in the battle for Iwo Jima will be dramatized soon on the screen in a movie entitled "To the Sands of Iwo Jima."

Filming of the movie, which is being produced by Republic Studios, was started last week at the Marine Barracks, Camp Pendleton, Calif. The stars, John Wayne, Adele Mara and John Agar, will be supported by a number of Marine officers and enlisted men who participated in the actual battle, as well as personnel currently stationed at the Marine base.

Marine aviators of VMF-323, stationed at El Toro, Calif., will provide action shots for the aerial portions of the film.

The flag-raising ceremony on Mount Suribachi, which made one of the most stirring photographs of World War II, will be shown in the movie, with three of the six original Marines portraying themselves in the scene. The original flag will be used in the filming.

Personnel Course at HQMC

Key field personnel of the Marine Corps will arrive in Washington on Monday to attend a week-long course of instruction on new personnel procedures to become effective before the end of the year.

The new overall personnel administrative system includes personnel accounting on machine records and the use of a diary which will considerably reduce the number of records and reports presently required. The muster roll, change sheet and monthly personnel report will be eliminated under the new system.

Personnel will also receive instruction in the assignment of new Military Occupation Specialty numbers, which are to replace the current SSN's. The primary MOS of officers and staff NCO's will be assigned at Marine Corps Headquarters, while that of personnel of the fourth pay grade and below will be accomplished locally.

Officers and enlisted men attending the course will be utilized as the nucleus for further instruction of administrative staff sections at their own bases.

Marine Generals to Reunion

The present Commandant of the Marine Corps, General Clifton B. Cates, and the former Commandant, General A. A. Vandegrift, will be among the top officers of the Corps to attend the First Marine Division Reunion in New York City on 6, 7 and 8 Aug.

Other top-ranking officers who will attend the convention are Maj. Gen. M. A. Edson (retired), Maj. Gen. L. C. Shepherd and Brig. Gens. T. J. Seiden and G. C. Thomas.

Marking the seventh anniversary of the landing of the First Division on Guadalcanal, the reunion will be held at New York's Hotel Astor. Both General Cates and General Vandegrift served with the distinguished division during the Guadalcanal engagement. General Vandegrift was Commanding General and General (then Col.) Cates as commanding officer of the First Marine Regiment.

Governor Visits Quantico

The Governor of Rhode Island, John O. Pastore, was an honored guest at Quantico last week.

A Marine Corps R4D, piloted by Lt. W. D. Collup of AES-46, transported the Governor and a party of 20 Rhode Island State and Civil dignitaries to the Marine Corps base to witness exercises of the 34th 155mm Howitzer Battalion.

The party lunched with the battalion in the field prior to witnessing the exercises. Afterwards they were taken on a tour of the post, and later were flown back to Providence.

Would Amend Navy and USMC Selection

Legislation which would alter the procedure for the involuntary retirement of Navy admirals and Marine Corps generals to create promotion vacancies and which would also authorize the Marine Corps to have 50 per cent of its general officers in the rank of major general has been introduced in the House by Chairman Carl Vinson (D. Ga.), Chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

The Navy Department said the legislation was being introduced to conform with the "expressed wishes of the President that some other method be substituted for the present method prescribed . . . of involuntarily retiring flag officers of the Navy and general officers of the Marine Corps."

That this measure is considered urgent is evidenced by the fact that it was not held up for incorporation in an omnibus bill of amendments to the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, slated for introduction in Congress early next year. Details concerning this latter measure were reported in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

The bill sponsored by Chairman Vinson would abolish the boards which select Navy admirals and Marine generals for involuntary retirement and would substitute provisions which would make such involuntary retirement the result of failure to be recommended, on a competitive basis, for retention on the active list. The Navy contended that this would remove the "objectionable feature of selecting individual officers for retirement."

With regard to the distribution of Marine Corps generals, the legislation would remove the present limitation of 12 permanent major generals and would authorize the Marine Corps to make 50 per cent of its 32 unrestricted general officers. It was explained that the postwar organization of the Marine Corps calls for 17 major generals' billets.

Marines Join in Festivities

Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., acted as Grand Marshal of the Culpeper (Va.) Bicentennial Parade which this week highlighted the festivities marking the 200th year since the founding of the Virginia town.

Also participating in the celebration was the colorful Quantico band, and 15 Marine lieutenants who escorted the Princesses from Virginia municipalities.

A display of infantry weapons including a 75mm "Pack" Howitzer, a "Bazooka" Rocket Launcher, 75mm recoilless rifle, a variety of machine guns, mortars and flamethrowers, was provided by the Marine Corps Schools. The weapons were on view to the public and Marines were on hand to explain their use and function.

Syria Decorates Marine

Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, Chief United Nations Observer in Palestine, was decorated this week by President Husni Zayim of Syria.

The Marine General, who has served as military advisor to U. N. Mediator Ralph Bunche for the past year, was decorated with the Medal of Merit for services to Syria.

Others who received awards at the same time were Maj. Stephen Mead, Assistant Military Attache at the U. S. Embassy in Damascus, and Henry Vigier, French assistant to Dr. Bunche.

Training for Dental Officers

A course in military training for Navy dental officers has been initiated at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

Covering two weeks of instruction, the program embraces the study of fire-fighting, military drill, Naval history, firearms, and a host of other subjects equally far removed from the field of dentistry.

According to Capt. C. W. Schantz, Senior Dental Officer of the Great Lakes Dental Department, the courses will be mandatory for all Great Lakes dental officers up to the rank of lieutenant commander. Eventually all Navy dental officers will take this or similar training courses.

Reassign Negro Airmen

Air Force implementation of its new non-segregation policy was evidenced this week with the disclosure that a total of 181 officers of the former all-Negro 332d Fighter Wing at Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, have been reassigned on an Air Force-wide basis.

Additionally, 700 airmen have been reported to USAF Headquarters for reassignment from Lockbourne following classification screening. Already, 475 airmen and 42 WAFS have left Lockbourne for new assignments.

As yet, none of the 23 medical officers, nurses and medical administrative officers at Lockbourne has been transferred, but their reassignment is expected in the near future. Approximately 35 officers and 300 airmen will be retained at the Ohio air base to maintain the station on standby basis.

At Lockbourne, officer personnel were individually screened by a board of officers composed of representatives from USAF Headquarters, Continental Air Command, Air Training Command and key officers at that base. Col. Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., commander of the 332d Fighter Wing and the ranking Negro officer in the Air Force, was president of the board. Colonel Davis has been named to attend the August class at the Air War College.

Air Force Warrant Officers

The list of 250 new Air Force temporary warrant officer appointments is expected for release in mid-August. The appointments are being made to fill vacancies created as a result of the continued extended active duty service of hundreds of Air Force Reserve officers who hold letters of selection for permanent warrant officer appointments.

Payment of Flight Pay

Beginning this month, all eligible Air Force personnel will receive their flying pay with the regular pay at the end of the month, or as soon thereafter as practicable.

Air Force officials said this week that in no case is the flying pay to be delayed past the 10th of the month following the one in which flight requirements were met, unless otherwise requested by the individual entitled to such pay.

AF Scientific Advisory Board

The Scientific Advisory Board Group arrived 22 July at Eglin AFB, Fla., by C-47 aircraft from Washington, D. C., on their two day tour of the Air Proving Ground. Their mission while at Eglin was to make a study of USAF research and development facilities, and budget and personnel techniques.

The ship's manifest contained on the Scientific Advisory Board roster, Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, USAF-Ret., whose colorful career was highlighted in 1942 when he led the famous B-25 aerial strike against Tokyo. General Doolittle is now associated with Shell Oil Co. Other members of the SAB included Dr. Louis N. Ridenour, Board Chairman, from Illinois University; Dr. George F. Baker, Harvard University; Dr. James B. Fisk, Bell Telephone Laboratories; Dr. Carl F. J. Overhage, Eastman Kodak Co.; Dean Ralph A. Sawyer, University of Michigan; Dr. Frank L. Wattendorf, Air Material Command; Prof. John H. Wild, Cornell University; Prof. Raymond J. Woodrow, Princeton University; Dr. M. E. Lombard, and Prof. W. R. Weems.

Seeks Site for Air Academy

Legislation which would authorize establishment of an Air Force Academy to be located at Barksdale AFB, La., was introduced in the House this week by Representative Brooks (D-La.). Meantime, it was expected that the National Military Establishment shortly would transmit to Congress its own bill for the creation of a third Service academy.

Temporary AF Majors

The board considering Air Force officers for temporary promotion to the rank of major was slated to complete its work this week. Officials said, however, that from one to two weeks would be required for administrative processing of the list before its release. When made available, the list will be printed in full in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Dependent Medical Care

Organization of a Dependent Medical Care Association on one Air Force Base at least has been shelved temporarily, it was reported this week.

The Bergstrom AFB, Tex., Dependent Medical Care Association has held up its organization pending receipt from USAF Headquarters of new information concerning care of dependents. It was said that an announcement is expected from Washington by 1 Aug.

Regular Air Force Nominations

President Truman this week sent to the Senate the nominations of the following for temporary appointment in the Air Force of the United States:

To be Major General
Brig. Gen. George R. Kennebeck, USAF, DC.
Brig. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, USAF, Med. C.
Chaplain Charles I. Carpenter, USAF, Ch.
To be Brigadier General
Col. Michael G. Healey, USAF, Med. C.
Col. Otis B. Schreuder, USAF, Med. C.
Col. Robert F. Tate, USAF.
Col. Roger J. Browne, USAF.
Col. Richard J. O'Keefe, USAF.

AWA Elects General Spaatz

General Carl A. Spaatz, USAF-Ret., 34th St., NW, Washington, D. C., has been elected to membership in the Aviation Writers' Association, a national organization composed of writers and editors who have a special knowledge of aviation.

General Spaatz is a special writer for Newsweek Magazine.

Three New Air Generals

Col. Richard J. O'Keefe, Commanding General, Dhahran AFB, Saudi Arabia; Col. Roger J. Browne, Chief of the Resources Division in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at USAF Headquarters who will become Chief, USAF Group, American Mission for Aid to Greece; and Col. Robert F. Tate, presently assigned to the staff of the National War College who will become Chief, USAF Group, American Mission for Aid to Turkey, were nominated by President Truman this week to be brigadier generals.

AF Recruiting Duty

Headquarters USAF announces that a wide choice of assignments throughout the United States are available to qualified officers in grade of first lieutenant through lieutenant colonel, who desire assignment to duty with the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service.

The Air Force believes that recruiting officers are at a definite advantage and are in a position to better understand the problems in the communities where they have spent the major portion of their lives. Therefore, every effort will be made to place officers assigned to recruiting duty at or near the city of the officers' own selection.

Interested officers who desire assignment to duty with the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service may apply according to the provisions of Air Force Letter 36-9, 13 Jan., 1949.

Far East Air Forces

The former Japan Air Materiel Area (JAMA), the Far East Air Materiel Command and the recently activated 13th Air Depot Wing have established joint headquarters, Headquarters Far East Air Forces has announced.

The wing-base squadron system has been adopted by the new organization which will officially be known as Headquarters, FEAMCOM, and 13th Air Depot Wing. Four groups are listed under the plan which includes 15 squadrons. These groups are the 13th Maintenance Group, 13th Supply Group, 13th Air Base Group and 13th Medical Group.

The new organization is under the command of Brig. Gen. Arthur Thomas, charged with providing supplies, aircraft maintenance and vehicular maintenance on Air Force special vehicles for all FEAF units in the Far East Command. Assisting General Thomas in the new headquarters as Deputy Commander is Col. A. W. Martenstein, who formerly directed the activities of JAMA.

Recall of Reserve Airmen

The Air Force has announced provisions for voluntary recall of male enlisted Reservists, who will be returned to active duty to fill vacancies. Action by the Air Force is based on a provision of the Selective Service Act of 1948 which provides authority for former enlisted personnel to return to active duty with the Air Force for a period of 21 months in the grade they now hold in the Air Force Reserve.

The number of personnel recalled will depend upon vacancies in the USAF and must be kept within enlisted quotas. Assignments can be made in all Air Force commands in the U. S., and in overseas areas where duty tours permit.

May Survey AF Officers

The refusal of the Senate to follow the House recommendation for a 58-group Air Force and the apparent adoption by Congress of a budget providing for 48 groups may require Air Force personnel officials to survey present officer strength.

It is reported that at present the Air Force has approximately 59,500 officers on active duty, Regular and Reserve. Whether this number would be retained for a 48-group force was not certain this week. Presumably, if attrition losses were not sufficient to provide vacancies for young officers, there would be need for the separation of some officers now on active duty.

pay or otherwise, according to the circumstances of the borrower. Gifts are granted in cases of emergency or death, or when no means of repayment can reasonably be established. In coordinating these functions with those similarly performed by the American Red Cross, great care is exercised to prevent duplication in efforts where policies mutually overlap. Cases covered by the American Red Cross aid may be supplemented by Air Force Aid Society participation when the exigencies of any particular case may so warrant. The Red Cross contributes to the efficiency with which Aid Society funds are equitably distributed by providing reports based on home conditions encountered when families reside at some distance from Air Bases.

Educational Assistance

An important part of the Aid Society's work is the Educational Fund for the purpose of furthering the higher education, including vocational training other than that given at the high school level, of dependent sons and daughters of Air Force personnel who are eligible and need scholarship assistance. This fund is continually increased by contributions from interested individuals and particularly by gifts from the Air Force Women's Clubs. It is the intent, wherever possible, to adhere to the following priority in providing assistance.

1. Children of Air Force personnel who died as a direct result of their war service.
2. Children of Air Force personnel who died subsequent to hostilities.
3. Children of Air Force personnel, generally.

All applications for assistance are considered on their own merits. Usually the cost of tuition is given as a grant and a loan for other expenses may be provided for in amounts not to exceed $300.00 in any one year. This requires the student to earn part of the expenses each year. The loan without interest, is to be repaid after graduation.

The calls upon the Educational Fund at this time are at the minimum due to the fact that most of the eligible children are still too young to participate. It is expected that the number requesting assistance from the fund will materially increase in the future.

Operations

An idea of the volume of relief is indicated by the knowledge that since beginning operation on March 1, 1946, to December 31, 1948, the Aid Society processed and approved more than 23,732 applications for aid, the amount of money disbursed through these applications totalling more than $1,397,000. Of this amount, $722,000 were disbursed in 1948 for the following basic reasons:

|----------------------------|-----|
| Medical and hospital care | 30% |
| Food, clothing and shelter | 43% |
| Emergency travel | 14% |
| Death | 7% |
| Miscellaneous | 6% |

The shortage of physicians in the Air Force contributed materially toward the 30% disbursed for health benefits. Most of the funds utilized for this purpose were for the payment of civilian doctors and hospitals for dependents who under normal conditions, would probably have been provided for at a military hospital.

Another critical factor confronting the Air Force is the housing situation. A housing shortage exists on most of the Air Bases and their immediate vicinity. This naturally intensifies other Air Force personnel problems and loan requests to the Aid Society for food, clothing, and shelter are frequently the result induced by this condition.

Displacement and transfer of Air Force personnel throughout the year, because of unforeseen emergencies or other developments such as the "Berlin Airlift," was responsible for a large part of the disbursements for travel. While the Aid Society does not ordinarily make loans for expenses connected with official travel, unusual circumstances may indicate the necessity for assistance to airmen and their dependents. Emergency "Airlift" requirements for personnel made it necessary to help those dependents who were left stranded at air bases.

Air Force Aid Society activities continue to expand, as represented by 141 Sections and Chapters actively operating throughout the Air Force, an increase of 16 over the previous year's total. The Society operates throughout the world for the benefit of Air Force troops, as long as they are stationed on an Air Force Base.

This continued expansion of facilities, along with the increased requests for assistance, must be paralleled by an increase in the operating funds available to the Society. All funds used for relief purposes by the Society are funds donated or contributed by Air Force personnel and friends of the Air Force. There are many people who imagine that this relief work is conducted by the use of appropriated government funds. This is not the case, since no government money is available for the service relief organizations to give financial assistance. The generous contributions made by Air Force personnel during the yearly membership campaign, practically supports this endeavor for the active duty personnel and their dependents.

ferred from the Army to the Air Force before the 26 July deadline.

This week, the President nominated the following officers, also transferred from the Army Medical Department to the Air Force, for higher rank: Brig. Gen. George R. Kennebeck, Chief, Dental Service, to be a major general; Brig. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, former commanding officer of the School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., to be a major general; and Col. Dan. C. Ogle, Special Assistant to the Surgeon General; Col. William H. Powell, Jr., Director of Professional Services, USAF Medical Corps; Col. Albert H. Schwichtenberg, Director of Plans and Hospitalization; Col. Michael G. Healy, Air Surgeon, Continental Air Command; and Col. Otis B. Schreuder, Air Surgeon, Air Materiel Command, to be brigadier generals.

The second major officer transfer recently accomplished was the one which created a separate Air Force Chaplains Corps. As had been predicted in recent issues of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, the Chief of Air Force Chaplains was named by the President to be a major general.

Meantime, in a memorandum sent to the Secretaries of the three departments, Secretary Johnson emphasized that establishment of the Armed Services as separate departments should not impede the integration of military operations of the Army, Navy and Air Force. He said:

"Although the Congress created three separate military departments, it was not its intent to impede the integration of the military operations of the three departments. The efforts of this office, therefore, have always been directed toward achievement of the fullest possible integration, an objective which will be attained more readily now than the activities of all three services are authorized by law to a comparable extent."

The National Security Act, signed by President Truman on 26 July 1947, specified that the transfers, including readjustments in personnel, property, records, installations, agencies, activities and projects, be completed within a two-year period. The final Transfer Order was signed by Secretary Johnson on Friday, 22 July. The unification of similar functions in the Departments of the Army and the Air Force to prevent duplication within the services was also required by the Act.

Materials Handling Committee

Mr. B. A. Dickson of the Terminal Warehouse Company has been elected Chairman of the Materials Handling Committee of the Navy Industrial Association, which group recently voted to change its name to National Security Industrial Association. Mr. Dickson succeeds Mr. Forest Nagler, Chief Mechanical Engineer of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.

The committee also welcomed to membership Mr. R. F. Weber, General Supervisor of Product Protection and Material Handling Research of the International Harvester Company.

Mr. C. H. Moeller, of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, reported on the work of his task committee in the establishment of safety standards for sitdown fork lift trucks, and of stability tests being conducted at Bayonne.

Army-AF Medical Transfer

National Military Establishment officials told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that world-wide readjustments resulting from the establishment of a separate Medical Department for the Air Force will be completed by 30 June, 1951.

The readjustments will be made to avoid individual hardships to the maximum extent possible and allowance will be made, it is emphasized, for the medical situation in each area where transfers are to be made.

Meantime, the following statistics concerning the selection of Army Medical Department officers for transfer to the Air Force were made available:

In the Medical Corps, 74 first lieutenants, 100 captains, 128 majors, 73 lieutenant colonels and 32 colonels were chosen for transfer, a total of 407 officers. In the Medical Corps Reserve, 775 were transferred to the Air Force. Of the 1182 Regular and Reserve officers who have been moved from the Army to the Air Force, 203 will be eligible for separation prior to 1 Sept.

In the Dental Corps, 20 first lieutenants, 55 captains, 63 majors, 28 lieutenant colonels and eight colonels were transferred, a total of 174, to which were added 250 Reserves.

In the Medical Service Corps, 35 first lieutenants, 76 captains, 41 majors, and five lieutenant colonels were transferred, a total of 157, to which were added 576 Reserves.

Five Veterinary Corps first lieutenants, 28 captains, seven majors, one lieutenant colonel and one colonel were transferred, a total of 42 to which were added 36 Reserves.

From the Army Nurse Corps, 102 first lieutenants, 200 captains and three majors were transferred to the Air Force, a total of 307, to which were added 892 Reserves.

With regard to dietitians, the Army lost to the Air Force four first lieutenants, seven captains and one major, a total of 12, to which were added 26 Reserves.

Four second lieutenants and two first lieutenants who are occupational therapists were transferred in addition to seven Reserves.

One second lieutenant, eight first lieutenants and four captains who are physical therapists were transferred, in addition to 26 Reserves.

Honor "Vittles" Airmen

Two members of the 43rd Bombardment Group's 65th Bombardment Squadron, Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., Capt. Franklin A. Crawford and T. Sgt. Kermit R. Green, were presented with an oak leaf cluster to the Air Medal last week by Col. Alvan N. Moore, commanding officer of the 43d Bomb Group. The clusters were awarded for completing 100 missions on the Berlin Airlift, "Operation Vittles."

SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1949

"Military Air Power—or Air Force—is dependent upon the air potential provided by industry which in turn, thrives best in an atmosphere of individual initiative and private enterprise."—GENERAL OF THE AIR FORCE HENRY H. ARNOLD.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Immediate reenactment of the law authorizing special military exemptions from the Federal Income Tax, broadened to include all retired pay from taxation.
2. Increase of Service pay for active and retired personnel.
3. Prompt construction of suitable family quarters for commissioned and enlisted personnel at all permanent stations.
4. Early attainment and continued maintenance of a fully manned 70-group Air Force, equipped with the best modern aircraft, and supported by a sound basic law for the Air Force.
5. Rapid expansion of our submarine fleet and accelerated development of anti-submarine vessels and equipment, with continued experimentation and construction of new naval types.
6. Organization and training of a balanced Mobile Ground Force, of sufficient strength and ready, with complete modern equipment, for immediate action in a National Emergency.
7. Liberal compensation for disability and service retirement of officers and enlisted men, with provision for retirement in highest grade satisfactorily held at any time.
8. Death benefits for survivors of military personnel based on today's higher living costs.
9. Increase in per diem allowances to compensate personnel for all expenses incurred while traveling on official duty.
10. Provision for the education of the children of Service personnel on active duty without expense where free public schools are not available.
11. Reimbursement for use of private automobiles on official business.
12. Close supervision and constant scrutiny of Service promotion and elimination policies to assure the prevention and prompt correction of injustices and inequities.
13. Continued scientific research and development in all new and unconventional methods of warfare, including atomic, biological, and radiological weapons, guided missiles and psychological warfare. Close liaison with industry and labor as elements of the National Defense team.
14. Development and improvement of the organization and training of the National Guard, Organized Reserves, and other civilian components, with proper inactive training pay and appropriate training facilities for all elements.

THE last legal tie joining the Air Force to its parent organization, the Army, was cut this week and on 26 July the United States Air Force, for the first time in its history, stood completely on its own with equal relationship to the Army and Navy as members of the National Security Team. The growth of this great new power has been the expression of the faith and devotion of military airmen from the first officer who comprised the original Aeronautic Division of the Signal Corps 42 years ago, through trying periods of peace-time penury, through struggles for recognition dramatized by the fighting General Billy Mitchell, through endless investigations and boards seeking to peg it in a permanent place in the military structure, and through two World Wars which saw it grow in stature and power and finally to reach deep into the homeland of our enemies on both sides of the world and smash the hearts of their industries and the morale of their peoples. Its airmen and officers, its leaders and generals such as Arnold, Spaatz, and Vandenberg, have earned the admiration and support of Congress and the people and won the Air Force's recognition and independence. Their objective now is to work with industry and science and with the other Armed Forces to make this nation so strong that no potential aggressor will dare threaten our way of life.

AT long last the House-approved Kilday Pay Bill is now on the Senate calendar and should come up for final action in the next week or two. It is hoped that the leadership will take early action to bring it to a vote and that, if passed, the House will accept the liberalizing Senate amendments without sending the measure to conference. In its final form the bill retains the basic principles established by the Hook Commission for career compensation based on responsibility. Personnel on active duty and those retired with more than 30 years' service, or with more than 60 per cent disability benefit most by the bill. For the first time in our history disability retirement is provided for enlisted men on the same basis as officers. It gives former enlisted men who served as officers in World War I the pay as well as the rank of the highest commissioned grade satisfactorily held, thus correcting a long-standing injustice. It provides for the gradual elimination of the wartime family allowances of enlisted personnel. Inevitably the bill contains disappointments for some active and retired personnel who had hoped, with much reason, for more equitable treatment. However, the bill undoubtedly represents the best attainable at this session of Congress. If it should fail of passage it is quite possible that it would be years before a satisfactory pay revision would be obtained. Serious inequities that may develop should be made the subject of separate legislation. The important thing is for all supporters of the Armed Services to work together for the prompt passage of the bill now before the Senate.

THERE is ground for hope that the present Congress will enact legislation to make a start toward providing suitable family quarters at military installations for dependents of members of the Armed Forces. The Appropriations Bill now before the Senate contains a modest amount for this purpose. The Congress has passed a measure for mortgage insurance of family housing built by private contractors at posts and stations. The House Armed Services Committee has approved the authorization of $97,600,000 for quarters for military personnel in continental United States. While the total number of dwelling units provided under these various measures falls far short of the 261,000 required at military installations their construction would be a substantial beginning in caring for the long-suffering families of Service personnel, who for years have been deprived of comfortable quarters either at military posts or in adjacent communities. In view of the urgency of the need there may be a tendency to favor the construction of cheap, sub-standard homes at relatively low cost. Any such trend should be vigorously opposed. Housing for Service personnel need not be elaborate, but it should be durable, comfortable and adequate. The need for more and better housing cannot be over-emphasized. Now that moderate pay increases are in prospect the most important item affecting Service morale is housing. It must be taken care of promptly if we are to be secure and retain for the Services the best qualified personnel.

Letters to the Editor

Letters expressing individual views and intended for publication should be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. If the writer desires to omit his name when the letter is published, he should so state. THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL may find it necessary to use only extracts from longer letters in order that more viewpoints may be represented.

A Song for the Army

EDITOR, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

The recently published winning entries in the Army's song contest are interesting attempts to produce "The Army Song," but irrespective of their merits—I confess I've seen only the lyrics, and have not heard the music—it seems rather like receiving a "forced issue." I see nothing wrong with the time-honored "Caisson Song" for a characteristic United States Army air. In our current efforts to achieve a "branch unconsciousness," perhaps we must not devote the words of the typical Army song to any one branch. Or maybe to show impartiality we must weave a complete roster of all arms and technical and administrative services into a stirring lyric. Be that as it may, the old horse-drawn artillery, its caissons and noble prime movers having become almost as archaic as Montezuma's Halls. Any very modern young soldier regardless of his arm or service affiliation should be able to take pride in the reminiscence of the caisson, and the horse and the dusty trail as a heritage of the whole Army, just as today's Marine aviator can thrill at the strains of "to the shores of Tripoli." Today's youthful Quartermaster clerk—and for that matter today's young artillery soldier—never harnessed and rode a wheel pair. Nor did MAG's strafe Montezuma's residence a century ago. Yet the "Caisson Song" and the "Marine Hymn" bespeak a part of the traditions of their Services, and are therefore to be cherished by Soldier or Marine, respectively.

One should keep in mind that the "Caisson Song" comprises more than the original "Over hill, over dale" routine. The introductory band music, composed at a later date, transforms this song into a march fully as stirring as "Anchors Aweigh," "Semper Fidelis" or the "Marine Hymn."

Now that military men are quite accustomed to conceiving of their combat units as teams playing a serious, cooperative game, it seems very pat to sing of our Army, "On, Brave Old Army Team!" With minor changes the words can be made appropriate and singable for the entire Army. My own version, which no doubt can be bettered, submitted herewith by way of suggestion, should find favor with the Branch-obliterators, even though hardly apologetic enough to suit extreme pacifists.

Yours for using the songs we've got.
Sincerely yours,

Charles W. Raymond, 2d
Lt. Col., GSC

ON, BRAVE OLD ARMY TEAM!
(With apologies to the U. S. Corps of Cadets)
The Army team's the pride and dream
Of every heart today.
The Army's line you'll ever find
A terror in the fray.
And when the team is fighting
For the red, and white and blue,
The services are always there,
Supporting firm and true.
The Army team! (whistle)
(Shout) Hey! Hey!! Hey!!! Boom!!!!
Chorus: On, brave old Army team,
On to the fray.
Fight on to victory,
For that's the fearless Army way.

Marital Vow

"Will you take this woman for your lawful wedded wife?
"Will you honor and obey her throughout your natural life?
"Will you let her have her way and fulfill her each desire;
"Start the breakfast every morning, chop the wood and build the fire?
"Will you let her drive your car? Will you give her all your money?
"Go to parties every night? Will you always call her honey?
"Will you support her mother, father and her brothers?
"Uncles, aunts, cousins and a half-dozen others?"
He gazed queerly at the parson, then he gave his head a tilt,
And hopelessly he raised his eyes, and meekly said, "I wilt."

25 Years Ago

The progress of naval aviation development is best demonstrated, according to observers, by the extensive use which is being made of the USS Langley, the airplane tender of the U. S. Navy. It is the first concrete evidence of the fight which naval aviation officers have put up to further the use of planes as "eyes of the fleet," and to make it practicable far away from land by providing floating air bases.

50 Years Ago

The Quartermaster's Department of the Army is considering plans by which it is proposed to do away with the dress coat for enlisted men and substitute in its place something more serviceable. Under the present regulations an enlisted man is entitled to one dress coat during an enlistment. It is much longer than the service coat, and one so made that it cannot be used for any other than dress purposes.

85 Years Ago

Gen. McDowell at San Francisco has issued an order requiring passengers on ocean steamers and ships to give up their arms to the captain of the vessel and permit an examination of their baggage. The object is to prevent the probable danger of attempts to take possession of steamers on the coast by pirates sailing as passengers.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—As a direct result of the ratification of the North Atlantic Security Treaty last week by the United States Senate the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff flew to Europe on Friday 29 July to confer with the military heads of Western European countries with reference to the military organization and other implications of the new defensive alliance. Included in the party are General Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the Army; Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations; General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and Major General Alfred M. Gruenther, Director of the Joint Staff.

Prior to leaving Washington the members of the Joint Chiefs appeared before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs which has under consideration the bill which would authorize the expenditure of $1.4 billion to assist in the rearmament of Western European members of the Atlantic Pact and certain other countries. The Joint Chiefs will confer with European military leaders in London and Paris and later will visit Frankfurt and Vienna. They are expected to be gone about ten days. A representative of the Joint Chiefs has already begun informal talks with a representative of the Canadian Chiefs of Staff on matters pertaining to the prospective military organization under the new treaty.

The President's request for authorization of funds for military assistance to Atlantic Pact nations and other countries is meeting with so much Congressional opposition that there is a strong possibility that the amount requested will be reduced by as much as one-half and that the President will not be given unrestricted authority for its distribution. Many Republican supporters of the bipartisan foreign policy, including Senators Arthur E. Vandenberg, Henry Cabot Lodge and John Foster Dulles, object to authorizing the immediate expenditure of anything like the full amount requested.

The program presented to Congress by the President would allot $940 million for military equipment, and technical and training assistance to Atlantic Pact countries of Western Europe; $155 million to increase military production in these nations; $250 million for military aid to other countries, including Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines; $45 million for an emergency fund; and $10 million for administrative expenses. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be authorized to advance $125 million to start the program.

Part of the assistance extended would be paid for by the recipient countries. The United States would act as purchasing agent for foreign governments in the procurement of munitions. Canada and the Latin-American countries are among the countries for which reimbursable aid is specifically contemplated.

In submitting the Military Assistance Program to Congress the President made a vigorous attack on the Soviet Union, which "with its violent propaganda, its manipulation of the conspiratorial activities of the world Communist movement, and its maintenance of one of the largest peacetime armies in history, has deliberately created an atmosphere of fear and danger." He emphasized the necessity for the nations of Western Europe to provide a shield against aggression.

The President recommended assistance of three types: first, dollar aid to increase production of military items in participating countries; second, direct transfer of essential items of military equipment; and third, assistance of experts in production and use of military equipment, and training of personnel. Hearings on the proposal are expected to be completed by the House Foreign Affairs Committee within two weeks.

Opponents to granting immediate military assistance in the full amount proposed by the President are expected to favor granting the full $250 million to countries outside the Atlantic Pact, but limiting the remainder to less than half that requested. The President and the State Department will press for the full amount, and are reported to be prepared to make available to appropriate Congressional committees highly confidential intelligence reports indicative of the extent to which Russia is now preparing for war.

Under the President's proposal administration of the program would be under the State Department, with representatives of the Military Establishment and the Economic Cooperation Administration participating. Some of the military equipment to be transferred would come from war surplus stocks and relatively small amounts from reserve supplies. By far the greater part would be manufactured by American industry with officers of the Armed Services in charge of procurement.

Relatively small American military staffs would be maintained in each of the participating countries. These staffs would co-ordinate the Military Assistance Program, and assist in planning defenses and in training forces. No estimate of the personnel required has been made, but in the aggregate the number is expected to be relatively large, with all Services represented.

Substantial reductions in American civilian and military personnel in Berlin are expected soon. It is reliably reported that about 200 civilian officials and employees and the 3d battalion of the 16th Infantry will be withdrawn from Berlin, most of the personnel going to Frankfurt. A Constabulary detachment and 200 or 300 American civilians will remain in Berlin. This move is regarded as having no major political significance. The establishment of a local German government in the western zones makes it advisable for American officials to be in close touch with the new regime. The withdrawal of the civilians permits a reduction in military strength at the old German capital.

Reports from Tokyo forecast a material reduction in headquarters personnel of the American occupation authorities. There has been some criticism of overadministration, and it is possible that there will be some relaxation of controls over the Japanese government. This would permit some curtailment of both military and civilian personnel engaged in such activities as civil information and education, national resources, and economic and scientific functions. No immediate reduction in the troop strength of the occupation forces is contemplated.

Elements of the American 5th Air Force and of the British Naval Fleet participated in joint training exercises in the Tokyo Bay area last week. Simulated low-level bombing attacks were made by American flyers on a British cruiser and destroyer. Other American air units were under control of British surface vessels for interception purposes. Similar exercises were recently held by units of the American Navy and Air Force.

Survey WAC Reading Habits—A survey of books bought in one book store by members of the Women's Army Corps, during the period 1 July 1948 to 30 June 1949 reveals the following distribution of purchases: Fiction 40 percent, poetry 25 percent, religious 15 percent, history 10 percent, and technical and training titles 10 percent. The figures are averaged to the nearest five percent.

Lt. Col. Carl M. Bortz, QMCRs, owner and operator of the T. S. Beckwith & Co., of Petersburg, Va., who made the survey, comments that the trend is not only interesting but a commendable distribution of reading matter. The availability of books on technical training subjects at the Service School Book Stores undoubtedly reduces this percentage in the commercial sales. The Beckwith store is located four miles from Camp Lee, where the WAC Training Center is located.

Air JAG Reserve—The Air Force has announced the establishment of the Judge Advocate General's Department Reserve. This will be part of the Air Force Reserve.

Inspects Quantico Housing—Frank L. Weil, Chairman of the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces, visited the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va., last week to make a personal inspection of the new Lustron Housing development there.

Court Martial Authority—Effective at midnight, 25 July, the authority of the Air Force for disciplinary jurisdiction over Army personnel under the command and authority of the Air Force Chief of Staff was terminated.

Army Barbershop Quartets—A new program to encourage barbershop quartet singing in the Army as the first step toward expansion of recreational music opportunities for soldiers in their leisure time was announced this week by the Army. The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Singing in America, Inc., an international organization, is cooperating through area and local chapter committees with Army Special Services in starting the program at Army posts.

Secy. Johnson's Anniversary Message—From the action of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson this week in sending a congratulatory message to the Army Medical Department upon its 174th anniversary it would appear that he does not desire that all individual branch Service celebrations be terminated. There was some speculation that Secretary Johnson desired the elimination of all Service celebrations except a single National Defense Day when he ordered that there be no more Army, Navy or Air Force Days.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL contended then that the esprit de corps occasioned by such celebrations as anniversaries of the various activities of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps was a significant morale factor. Hope was expressed that Secretary Johnson's order would not result in the elimination of these ceremonies. With his greeting to Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, the Army Surgeon General, it is apparent that Secretary Johnson has no desire that these branch anniversary celebrations be ended.

Secretary Johnson said of the Army Medical Department:

"I send my greetings to the Army Medical Department on the occasion of its 174th anniversary.

"One of the oldest agencies of the Defense Establishment, the Army Medical Department has, from the Revolution through World War II, ably discharged its obligation to serve our sick and wounded.

"In time of peace, the Army Medical Department has applied itself consistently to the development and use of new preventive measures, new drugs, new surgical procedures. The techniques and medicine thus developed have been of benefit not only to the men and women of the Army, but to the country as a whole and to the people of far-away lands. The Army Medical Department's long years of experience are proving invaluable to the Army of today. They provide a solid and promising foundation for military medicine of tomorrow."

Quartermaster Corps—Col. Frederic P. Van Duzee is relieved from temporary duty at the Camp Stoneman Personnel Center, Calif., and is assigned to Far East Command, effective 9 Aug. Lt. Col. William E. Murphy, Jr., will be relieved from Columbus General Depot, Ohio, and assigned to Field Service Division, OQMG, Washington, D. C., effective 12 Aug. Lt. Col. John H. Heil is relieved from U. S. Army, Pacific, and will be assigned to Student Detachment, Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, D. C., effective 24 Aug. Col. Gaylord B. Kidwell has been relieved from European Command and assigned to Washington QM Depot, Alexandria, Va., effective 22 July. Col. Norman P. Williams will be relieved from OQMG, Washington, D. C., and assigned to QM Center, Camp Lee, Va., for duty with the Quartermaster Board, 15 Aug. Col. Lois C. Dill, who has been a patient at Brooke General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, will retire from active service on 31 July. Prior to assignment to the Pacific, Colonel Dill was Commanding Officer at the Memphis General Depot.

Navy Day—Russian Style—The first navy to use armored cruisers, high speed destroyers, modern submarines, torpedoes and armor piercing shells (among other things) was the Russian Navy . . . according to the Russians. In celebration of Soviet Navy Day this week, the USSR declared, through its official newspaper, that the Soviet Governments' "gallant navy" had "played an outstanding role in the crushing defeat of Japanese militarists." Naval bases of the Red nation were depicted as extending from the Pacific to the Danube and from the Arctic to the Caspian Sea.

Organized Reserve Corps—Announcement of the assignment of Col. Hobart A. Murphy as Administrative Assistant to the District Executive, Eastern Pennsylvania Military District, was made by Col. James B. Carroll, District Executive and Senior Army Instructor, Organized Reserve Corps, EPMD. Colonel Murphy has reported for duty in Philadelphia from Amarillo, Texas, where he was instructor on duty with the Texas National Guard.

Infantry Center—Brig. Gen. Foster J. Tate, Third Division Artillery commanding general, will retire from active duty 31 July, ending a military career which begun in 1918 and extended through 31 years of service.

The chief of staff of Thailand, Lt. Gen. Dej Dejpradiyudh, and a party of Thai army officials left Fort Benning 21 July, following a two-day tour of the Infantry Center. The group included Maj. Gen. Vichien Sutan, director of arsenals; Maj. Gen. Chamhong Bhumivet, director of welfare; Maj. Chatchia Choonhaven, assistant military attache, Royal Thai embassy, Washington, D. C., and Captain Chan-Narong Vijarnbut.

Strategic Air Command—Arrival at Ladd AFB, Alaska, of the 343d Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, as well as units of two additional squadrons of the Strategic Air Command, has been announced by Brig. Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, 5001st wing commander. Under command of Maj. George C. Player, the 343d, plus parts of the 324th Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron and the 7th Geodetic Squadron, will be stationed at America's farthest-north air base for a period of 90 days. Primary purpose of the move, General Gaffney stated, will be accomplishment of photo-mapping of the Alaskan mainland and arctic indoctrination of flight crews with emphasis placed on training of navigators in intricacies of polar navigation.

Two Army Generals Reassigned—The Army announced the appointment this week of Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain as Army Comptroller, and that of Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Packs as Chief of Public Information for the Army.

General McLain is at present Chief of Information of the Army, a position that will be abolished. As Army Comptroller he will succeed Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey who retired on 30 June. As Chief of Information General McLain has supervision over the Public Information Division, the Troop Information and Education Division, and the Legislative and Liaison Division. The Troop Information and Education Division has been transferred to the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the other two divisions will hereafter report directly to the Army Chief of Staff.

General Parks, who is now Deputy Commanding General of the Hawaiian Department, will succeed the late Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard as Chief of Public Information. General Prichard was recently killed in a tragic boat explosion on the Potomac River. General Parks was Chief of Public Information from January 1946 to August 1948 when he left for Hawaii.

Reserve Officer Protest—The Reserve program is still lagging, Col. Clarence E. Barnes, president of the Reserve Officers' Association, declared this week in Grand Rapids, Mich., where the association is holding its annual convention. Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, executive director, said "We are going to take our case to Congress, if necessary, over the heads of the people in the Pentagon."

Army Finance Department—Lt. Colonel Howard H. Simmons, FD, previously assigned to the Logistics Division, General Staff, has been selected to attend the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University, beginning with the Fall Term. Previously enrolled in postgraduate courses in civilian schools are: University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School of Finance and Commerce; Lt. Col. Herbert C. Ritze, Maj. Herman B. Wild and Maj. Laurence T. King; Stanford University, Graduate School of Business, Lt. Colonel Arthur C. Small; Harvard University, School of Business and Administration, Maj. John M. Wilson, Jr., and Capt. Thomas C. Grissom, Jr.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—The Surgeon General, Rear Adm. C. A. Swanson, MC, USN, recently announced the establishment of two new courses of instruction for inactive reserve medical officers in Medical Aspects of Special Weapons and Radioactive Isotopes, under the sponsorship of the Medical Officer-in-Command, Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. The first course is to commence on 26 Sept. and will continue through 1 Oct. The second course is to commence on 10 Nov. continuing through 19 Nov.

Three additional Naval medical officers were recently informed they have been certified by American Boards. Capt. M. J. Second place went to M. Sgt. Raul Jimenez, whose fourth round 72 was low medal, with 311. He is stationed at Washington National Airport with MATS 1254th Air Transport Squadron of the Continental Division. Five strokes behind Jimenez and tied for second place with 316 were Capt. R. C. Dineen, 2108th Air Weather Group, Westover AFB, Mass., and M. Sgt. Milo Whisler, of MATS Arctic station at Blue West One, Greenland. Col. The mobile signal center, an assembly of military telephone, teletypewriter, cryptographic, and radioteletype communications equipment installed in eight trailers and three shelters, provides the communications facilities normally required for initial installation by an Army or similar sized headquarters. The assembly provides the terminating, switching, and testing facilities for telephone lines, teletypewriter loops, and spiral four-carrier systems.

U. S. COAST GUARD

ALL Coast Guard personnel enlisted on the west coast without prior Navy or Coast Guard service are now being sent to the Cape May, N. J., Receiving Center for basic training. In the past, a percentage of men enlisted in this category was retained in the district in which enlisted.

The Coast Guard said also that effective 5 Aug., the only petty officer ratings authorized for enlistment are radioman and electronics technician, 1c, 2c, and 3c.

Operations

Having completed one month's availability at the Coast Guard Yard, Curtis Bay, Md., the Sassafras has returned to permanent station. The Willow has arrived at her new permanent station at San Francisco, Calif., and the Ivy is also at her new permanent station at Astoria, Ore.

Coast Guard Day

The Coast Guard will celebrate its 159th anniversary on 4 Aug. with special ceremonies across the Nation. Since the Coast Guard is part of the Treasury Department in time of peace, it is not bound by the recent order of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson abolishing separate Service day celebrations.

Coast Guard statements from the President, the Secretary of the Treasury and Admiral J. F. Farley, Coast Guard Commandant, will be released on 4 Aug.

Among other Coast Guard Day ceremonies will be a boat drill and rowing competition at Morehead City, N. C.; a city-wide fete at Grand Haven, Mich.; a picnic in San Francisco, Calif.; a plane and helicopter demonstration in Baltimore, Md.; and a program of special events at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. Also planned is a Coast Guard broadcast over the American Broadcasting System on the evening of 3 Aug.

The Most Results—

A constant user of ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL classified ads writes:

"I get most results from this ad of any advertising that I run. Believe it or not, I have sold four houses over the phone to people who have never been here, as a result of this ad. I would say I average ten inquiries a week by mail, and most of these officers contact me upon arriving here."

If you, too, want to get the most results put your classified advertising in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL—The Gazette of the Land, Sea, and Air!

Send your advertisement to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, Classified Advertising Department, 1711 Connecticut Avenue northwest, Washington 9, D. C., with payment at the rate of twelve cents per word (minimum $1.50).

FINANCE

Financial Digest

The Department of Commerce this week reported that personal incomes and retail sales remained steady during the second quarter of this year, despite continued drops in industrial production and prices. High volume of automobile sales offset reduction in other trade channels, while price drops stimulated sales in some lines.

At the same time the Department of Labor reported that 43,736,000 persons were employed in nonagricultural jobs during June, a gain of 70,000 over May, but 1,300,000 below June of 1948. The biggest increase was in the construction industry which added 65,000 employees during June.

The net income of the United States Steel Corporation for the first six months of this year was $94 million, as compared with $53,443,000 for the first half of 1948. Products and services sold by the corporation for the first half of 1949 totaled $1.3 billion, and shipments were 10,767,000 tons of steel products, both records for any half year in the history of the corporation. However, orders for steel are declining and a sharp drop in production and earnings is expected during the second half of 1949.

General Motors Corporation reported that its net sales and earnings for the second quarter of this year were the highest in the company's history. Sales totaled just under $1.6 billion, as compared with about $1.15 billion for the corresponding quarter of last year. Net earnings were approximately $167 million, with $110 million for the like period of 1948. Motor vehicles sold during the quarter by the corporation in the United States and Canada totaled 791,596, a new record. The highest previous record of the company was achieved in the second quarter of 1941 when 757,505 cars and trucks were sold.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), this week moved to obtain restoration of appropriations necessary to continue in full operation the training of cadet midshipmen and skilled unlicensed personnel for the merchant marine and upgrade training for maritime officers.

Involved in the program which the Massachusetts Senator is backing are schools in various parts of the country, including the Massachusetts Maritime Academy and the Maine Maritime Academy. Under an amendment to the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill filed by Senator Saltonstall, the appropriation would be restored to the $6,586,000 figure contained in the original budget estimates.
